"So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do all to the glory of God."

Richard Hays: 'Once again we see Paul trying to move his readers from an anthropocentric view to a theological one, from an emphasis on rights to an emphasis on obedience and service. Eating, drinking, and all other activities are embraced by this comprehensive mandate. In light of the entire passage, we can infer that the glory of God is served when God's people serve one another and live in loving unity.'
